

WOIC 2023 Doctoral Consortium Call for Applicants

Consortium Chairs

Mehdi Bagherzadeh (NEOMA Business School – France)
Ching Liao (CUNEF University – Spain)
Maral Mahdad (Wagenigen University & Research – The Netherlands)

The WOIC 2023 Doctoral Consortium will provide 12 doctoral students the opportunity to interact with and learn from experienced Open Innovation scholars and to expand participants' professional networks. The consortium is open to mid- to late-stage doctoral students (i.e., approximately two years into their studies) whose research is in or related to the field of Open Innovation.

As part of the consortium, participants will have access to a dedicated pre-conference program and a tailored paper development workshop on Wednesday, November 8.

Note: Registration for the conference is required to be able to participate. For more information, please check our call for doctoral consortium applicants at: <https://worldopeninnovation.com>

During the doctoral consortium, participants will:

- Interact with experienced Open Innovation scholars to discuss their research and ambitions.
- Gain insight into the review and publication process of Open Innovation research in leading academic journals.
- Benefit from talks by Editors of high-ranking journals in the field of Open Innovation.
- Develop an understanding of emerging questions, challenges, and methods in the field of Open Innovation.
- Exchange experiences and best practices with dedicated mentors and fellow doctoral students.
